Between vague guidelines on medical supply reporting, limited information availability from a variety of other sources, and the ever-increasing volume of supplies in the marketplace, capturing potential revenue and avoiding compliance risk is a very difficult and tedious task. Hospitals must review each item manually, utilizing a variety of sources, often contacting the vendor directly. Manual processes can be labor-intensive. The Complexity and sheer volume of inquiries over time can lead to compliance risk, claim denials, rework, and waste in healthcare as well as lost reimbursement opportunities.

The Supply Item Advisor tool provides an extensive compilation of supplies enabling hospitals to quickly ensure they comply with CMS guidelines in relation to medical supply charging and reporting. The Supply Item tool also aids Hospitals in improving their supply management processes by identifying inconsistencies and errors within existing items, performing a retrospective review of the hospital's Materials Management Item Master and making it easier for staff to maintain the tables.
